EXAMINER'S COMMENT

Applicant's amendments to claims 1, 6, 8, 9, 14-17, 27, and 30, and cancellation of claims 5, 13, 18, and 34, in the response filed 05 October 2005, has been considered and entered.

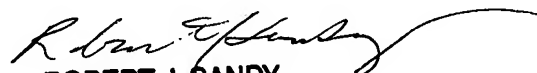

In view of applicant's filed response canceling claim 34, and amending claims 1, 15, 16, and 27, the claim objections indicated in the prior Office action have been withdrawn.

In view of applicant's filed response amending claims 1, 15 and 27 to claim "A fishing line crimp" and to include the limitations of "at least one pin extends from the body generally along a longitudinal axis of the body and is bent transversely to the longitudinal axis of the body", which are defined over Carlson (U. S. Patent No. 5,022,178) and Luongo (U. S. Patent No. 3,916,517), and for the reason(s) applicant has provided in the file response in section III (pages 11-13) pointing out the deficiencies of Carlson not having a pin extending along a longitudinal axis of the body and is bent transversely to the longitudinal axis (page 11, beginning in third paragraph), and Luongo not being a fishing line crimp and having a pin extending from the body generally along a longitudinal axis of the body and bent transversely to the longitudinal axis (beginning in the third paragraph on page 12). Hence, the rejections under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) and 103(a) each have been withdrawn.
